

These Graphics Imagine Unrealized Architectural Plans as Beautiful Snowflakes

Save

Written by Patrick Lynch

Published on January 03, 2017

Much like snowflakes, the most beautiful architectural plans consist of complex relationships between geometries – and no two are exactly alike. In this spirit, KOSMOS Architects has created a series of planimetric graphics of some of the most notable architectural projects to have disappeared from our world in celebration of the New Year.

“Sometimes architecture isn’t everlasting, and is as ephemeral as snowflakes on a Christmas tree. On our Happy New Year poster we have collected some fairy, radical, and utopian plans, which were either never built or have already disappeared. We hope these ‘snowflakes’ will inspire you in 2017!”

Dashly Oasis

Ebenezer Howard Garden City

Filarete Sforzinda Star-Shaped City

Death Star, Star Wars

Panopticon penitentiary Jeremy Bentham

Tommaso Campanella City of the Sun

Alexander Brodsky, Ilya Utkin The Intelligent Market

Ricardo Bofill Study for an ideal city

Herman Hertzberger Centraal Beheer

Ernst Gloeden Nuclear Towns

To download a high-res poster of the “snowflakes,” click here.

Via KOSMOS Architects.